The art and science of hospitality management

Ecole Hôtelière de Lausanne teaches hotel management with protel Shaping the future of hospitality with protel SPE

The Ecole hôtelière de Lausanne delivers international hospitality management education leading to accredited Bachelor and Master degrees. Starting this autumn, the school will employ protel SPE in their courses. The single property management system of German protel hotelsoftware GmbH will be used in the two-year hotel management diploma programme.

Dedicated to developing the industry's future leadership talents to the highest possible level, EHL regularly adapts the contents of its three academic programmes to reflect the latest technologies and trends in the marketplace. protel business partners Jean-Claude Petit, director of Ideosoft, France, and Walter Berger, chief executive of Swiss Rebag Data, are very pleased to announce the new cooperation of protel with one of the most prestigious educational institutions for the hospitality industry worldwide.

EHL is recognized worldwide for the quality of its academic programmes, which are a unique combination of advanced studies in hospitality management coupled with operational expertise. Michel Rochat, General Director of the EHL since 2010, states that EHL is committed to remaining at the forefront of hospitality management education by continually re-examining established practice - close and privileged partnerships with international enterprises at the forefront of the hospitality industry being one of the pillars of excellence.

EHL programmes lead to a wide range of management careers in the hospitality, leisure and tourism industry as well as in related fields that utilize hospitality expertise, such as banking, auditing, real estate, asset and financial management, consulting, marketing, luxury products management, etc.
